

Vesper and the Star-Tail Dragon

מאת irit kogan

Vesper steered her small silver rocket ship
through a sea of black velvet. She was looking for a very special fuel:
.stardust

With a soft clunk, the rocket landed on a purple moon. Vesper stepped out into the quiet. Everything felt soft, cold, and very
.sparkly

Behind a large, round rock, a pair of bright eyes blinked. It was a dragon! But he wasn't scary; his scales were the color of a beautiful
.sunset

Hello," said Vesper," holding out a shiny golden button from her pocket. The dragon, whose name was Glimmer, sniffed it and gave a happy, rumbling
.purr

Glimmer had a best friend named Piff, a moon-rabbit with long, fluffy ears. They spent their days chasing shooting stars across the
.deep craters

Piff hopped right onto Vesper's space helmet.
"We can help you find stardust!" Piff squeaked, his little pink nose twitching with
.excitement

Glimmer used his tail to shake a tall crystal tree.

Piff caught the falling, glowing glitter in a little woven basket made of
.moon-grass

Vesper and Glimmer carried the glowing basket back to the rocket. The stardust smelled like toasted marshmallows and the
.fresh, cold night air

The rocket was ready to fly home. Vesper hugged Glimmer's warm, scaly neck. "I'll come back soon!" she promised as she waved a final .goodbye

